Brett Braun

Brett Braun is an executive leader with more than 20 years of experience scaling and building high-performing healthcare organizations. Throughout his career, he has hired and developed hundreds of employees and recruited hundreds of physicians in increasingly competitive and constrained labor markets. As a business builder, he has successfully grown multiple organizations by combining operational discipline with intentional culture design and leadership development. Brett's hands-on experience includes identifying high-potential talent, redesigning roles for scalability, and implementing systems that attract and retain top performers. His real-world leadership experience positions him as a subject matter expert in hiring, developing, and retaining talent in environments with limited labor supply.
