Vivek Chaturvedi, MD, FASRS

Dr. Vivek Chaturvedi is a practicing retina specialist and physician leader focused on physician well-being, professional development, and mentorship. Over the past five years, he has held formal leadership roles in resident wellness at Rush University Medical Center, built structured mentorship programs within private practice, and taught extensively on burnout prevention and financial literacy across multiple specialties. His work has influenced both institutional and national efforts, including the addition of burnout metrics to the annual ASRS PAT survey and invited presentations at the ASRS Business of Retina meeting. He is a published author in Retina Times (ASRS) and a recipient of the Golden Apple Teaching Award, reflecting sustained peer and trainee endorsement. Dr. Chaturvedi's approach emphasizes physician-led, data-driven, and scalable systems that support physician performance, autonomy, and long-term sustainability.
