Ms. Heather Thomas is a Louisiana based, values-driven health care business leader and current COO & CFO for Retina & Vitreous of Louisiana. She manages the administration of all aspects of the health care services at RVOL including clinical, financial, administrative, information technology and human resources systems. She is responsible for advancing the practice mission and cultivating a culture of excellence that manifests in daily practice operations. This is realized by collaborating with team leadership to define, articulate, and drive comprehensive goals for practice success and growth.

Heather's financial and operations background within diverse industries has improved her ability to translate operational performance into improved financial understanding and foresight. Her experience has allowed me to create robust financial infrastructures by using new processes and implementing new technology (implemented new accounting, expense, tax, and corporate performance management systems).

Ms. Thomas has more than 15 years' experience in finance and operational management within smaller firms as well as a regional multi-million-dollar organization. Before joining her current group, she was the Interim CFO of a nationwide property development and management group working with historic tax credits and enterprise zones for major investors.
