

JVRD

Journal of Vitreoretinal Diseases

CALL FOR PAPERS

Young Investigator

SPECIAL EDITION

Deadline:
March 1, 2019

Special Edition Editors:
Szilárd Kiss, MD
Mario Romano, MD, PhD
Yoshihiro Yonekawa, MD

Submit at <https://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/jvrd> and select the Young Investigator theme issue as the article type.

The Journal of Vitreoretinal Diseases (JVRD), in association with the Board of Directors and the Early Career Section of the American Society of Retina Specialists, is pleased to announce a forthcoming Young Investigators special edition featuring articles from retinal specialists worldwide who are forty years of age or younger, including ASRS members as well as nonmembers. The cultivation and development of talented individuals who are in the early stage of retinal practice is vital to the continued growth and vibrancy of our subspecialty, and we wish to enhance their visibility and career momentum with this special issue. Our current Deputy Editors, Drs. Szilárd Kiss, Mario Romano, and Yoshihiro Yonekawa have enthusiastically agreed to serve as editors for this issue, and will review and select the contributions for inclusion. To be eligible, the younger member must be either the first or last author and must be the corresponding author; additional information will be available on both the ASRS and the JVRD websites. We look forward to receiving submissions from as many young career retinal specialists as possible for this exciting Young Investigators issue of JVRD.

Sincerely,

Donald J. D'Amico, MD
Editor-in-Chief
The Journal of Vitreoretinal Diseases

 SAGE

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

 ASRS American Society of Retina Specialists

Board of Directors + Early Career Section